ties in Manitoba. The Honorable Bob is not exactly a discard. He is what the conjurers call a forceful card. That is to say he force himself. He saw it was time to get out of that pack in Manit-Jab. To give him credit he did his best to postpone a new shuffle in Manitoba. He could pull off an amazing selection of cards. He could get out ahead the house of cards he'd put in on him. The evidence goes to show that the Honorable Bob paid frequent visits to Dr. Simpson the Conservative organizer, whose dark secrets repose now in a safety deposit box while their owner seeks peace and quiet at the battle front in Flanders. It seems that the chief maxim of undergrowth statesmanship "Don't drive home," could be the always forlorn and some of the times happy to be heard G. W. Luckily these telegrams are Janned.

Patronize your home industry, this should be the slogan of every farmer and every person living in Claresholm and vicinity. But the part we wish to discuss this week is especially to the farmer in respect to patronize the local economy.

There has been a rumor afloat that the Claresholm Creamery has been closed, this seems to have left a false impression on some of the farmers and persons circulating such reports are requested by the officials of the company to discontinue such circulation or they may have to face a

Successful Halt Holiday

The first Wednesday half-holiday sports for Claresholm, were held at the local exhibition grounds on Wednesday afternoon of last week at two o'clock and proved a very successful affair. About two hundred spectators turned out to see the sports, and the weather man was on his best behaviour until just as everyone had left or was about to leave the grounds. The first ball game was between the married men and the single men of Claresholm with a victory for the singles by a score of sixteen to thirteen. The line up for this game was as follows.

In the ballgame later in the day Grain

The gate receipts which amounted to twenty-eight dollars was divided between the park association and the patriotic fund.

While yesterday was not observed on account of today being a holiday next Wednesday afternoon should be a lively day of sports for Clareholm. It is expected to have several more ball games, football games and a large number more races. Remember the stores close from one to five o'clock in the afternoon.

BLIND LECTURER COMING

Jan. B. Osborne, the noted blind Socialist orator from California, who has been lecturing on prohibition throughout the province is billed for lecture engagement in Charesholm next Wednesday evening, July 7.

The meeting will take place in the Opera House at 7:45 and the subject will be "Ostracism lectures will be on "The Liquor Question," Farmers and Labor questioners are especially invited to hear this address at Mr. Osborne is a capable and well informed student of current tendencies, and he will analyze the prohibition question from the working class view point. After the lecture a dance will be given by the Band boys and a good time is anticipated.

Wheat Forty-One Inches High

Yesterday Nels Peterson a farmer south-west of town brought to this office an exceptionally fine specimen of Red Eye wheat. The stalks measure forty-one inches in height. Mr. Peterson has about seventy acres of this wheat and says that on the heads that are already beginning to form there are from seventeen to twenty grains, heads of wheat this

Only three kernels of wheat, this is grown on Section 20, Township 11, Range 27, near the Northern Light school house. Mr. Peterson has been very fortunate in not being halled out and with the present prospects, and weather conditions permit the looks forward to harvesting a crop of from thirty-five to forty bushels to the acre.

Adam God did make out of dust
But thought it best to make me first!
So I was made before the man,
To answer His most holy plan.
My body He did make complete
But without arms or legs or feet
My ways and acts He did control
But to my body gave no soul.
A living being I became
And Adam gave to me a name,
I from his presence then withdrew;
And more of Adam never knew
I did my Maker's law obey
And from it never went astray
Thousands of miles I go in fear,
But seldom on the earth appear.

For purposes wise which God did see,
He put a living soul in me
A soul from me my God did claim
And took from me that soul again.
And when from me that soul hath fled
I was the same as when first made
And without hand's or feet or soul
I travel on from pole to pole.

I labor hard by day and night
To fulfill man I give great light.
Thousands of people young and old,
Do by my death great light behold.
No right or wrong can I perceive
The Scriptures I cannot believe,
Although my name therein is found
They are to me an empty sound.
Nothing on earth doth trouble me,
Real happiness I shall never see,
To Heaven I shall never go
Nor to the grave or hell below.
Now when these lines you closely read
Go search your Bibles with all speed
For that my name is recorded there
I honestly to you declare.

The Chesham Skating Rink Association have just straightened up their business, and it has been found as well as being successful in many other ways it was also a paying investment for those who were financially interested. This season the management have been able to pay back to each shareholder $10.25 for each $10 invested. This also includes the seasons skating as well as other privileges so which the shareholders were entitled.

This may be said to have been the most successful season yet, and it is hoped that by next season it will be seen that a permanent rink would be a paying proposition. It has been estimated that a $2000 covered structure would pay for itself in about four years, and would make a valuable asset to the town. The building could be used for many other purposes outside of the skating season.

This wonderfully entrancing serial that the Rex has no doubt met with the approval of the movie fans of Clarholm, as is evidenced by the attendance which is as large as that given the "Master Key." The first episode, which was on Monday and Tuesday, was exceedingly interesting and leads up to one of the greatest climaxes of all. From reports received from other large points, where this great serial is in its seventh or eighth episode, it is said that it is in far advance of any other serial ever filmed.

On June 15 a very pretty wedding took place in Fowler, Indiana, when Carl T. Milnes, of this place was united in marriage to Miss Lela Carson, at her home there. Mr and Mrs. Milnes left for a short wedding tour to Columbus, and Indianapolis, Indiana and Madison, Wisconsin, arriving at Clarsholm yesterday morning. They will take up their new home on Fairview farm just south of town.

Some people seem to have taken the idea from the notice in last week's Review to the effect that the Presbyterian Sunday School was to have held its annual picnic at the picnic grounds at the pumping station that this was to be on a public picnic ground. We tried to correct this misunderstanding by stating that the grounds referred to is private property belonging to F. W. Elliott and it was only through his kindness the Sunday School were able to secure such a beautiful spot for their days outing. While the picnic has been postponed from today indefinitely, it will probably be held here at a later date. And it is the desire of the church and Sunday school to express their appreciation to Mr. Elliott for kindness in letting them have the ground.

What is agreed to by all who heard it, as being one of the best concerts of its kind ever given in the local opera house was held under the auspices of the Patriotic Society Tuesday evening.

The Choral Society consisting of thirty-five voices gave four well rendered selections and was appreciated by all.

As for the rest of the program each individual taking part deserves special mention however, this week with our limited time and space as well as our inability to do each party justice we will simply publish the program below and state that each one did their part to make the entertainment a success.

The plot of the one act farce was that in which Sam Gaythorne had married against his rich uncle, Col.

Berners' will and as a result just when diuances were most needed from his uncle Sam Gaythorne received a letter containing the sum of one shilling as his portion of the estate. By accident Col. Berners meets Mrs. Gaythorne and she gives him her story, without telling him who she is and he is rather disgusted with her husband's uncle for cutting them off in such a manner without any cause, and at the same time tells her of a similar incident he has with his nephew. However, Col. Berners writes a letter to his new acquaintance's uncle and is about to leave when he discovers that the

The success of the concert was largely due to the efforts of Messrs. J. R. Watt and Wm. Moffatt, Jr., while every person taking part no doubt felt that just such a concert was needed and did their share, these two gentlemen were especially interested in managing the affair and especially Mr. Moffatt's work in training the Choral Society deserves great credit. The total proceeds of the evening were $58.35 with expenses of $19.74 leaving a balance of $38.61 which goes to the Patriotic and Relief fund.

Clinton Howard Assails The Liquor Traffic

We are in the midst of the most momentous solemn and tragic hour in the history of mankind. One half of the civilized world is engaged in human assassination. The most stupendous, colossal, calamitous, crimson, consciousness, uncivilized, merciless, barbaric and cataclysmic war in the history of the ages is on.

In the war the people of the United States are commended by their 'strict neutrality, not neutrality that denies to us the right of an opinion, or the right to express an opinion founded upon conviction after intelligent and impartial information and investigation. For though the United States as a nation is neutral I have not met a native American in travelling across the continent since the war began who does not wish for the triumph of England's cause and ardently hope that the Union Jack shall float triumphantly over every battlefield that has been stained and consecrated with the blood of Canada's sons.'

But the war between Germany and Austria on the one side and the allies on the other is not the only stupendous conflict in which the world is engaged today. The moral conflict of the ages is on, the conquest of humanity by its ancient and merciless foe, the dual kingdom of Baccus and Gaminibus on the one side and civilized humanity on the other. And in that war we have broken the line, turned the right, centre and left wings, and captured the trenches of the enemy.

The liquor traffic is on the defensive and in retreat before the moral, civic, industrial, scientific, political and military allies of the world. There are no neutral powers; the whole world is belligerent against a common foe, and John Barleycorn must die.

Of this Queen of the Dominion provinces we will sing after next July. "The distiller by the hillside now is still.

The men will take their tippie from the ripple of the rill.

Glory hallelujah, Alberta went dry.

The race is on between the United States and the Dominion of Canada for the crown of prohibition, and you ought to bet us to that moral goal which is the consummation of this genre.

We point you to a sister nation with 100,000,000 population, with 18 dry states, 1500 dry countries and 14,000 dry towns and cities, 2,000,000 square miles of prohibition territory and over 50,000,000 of people living under the white flag of prohibition.

Start the ball rolling on July 21 in Alberta and the whole Dominion will catch the holy contagion.

After about eight years of success, business career in purchasing cattle in Clareholm, Messrs Walls and Price have disposed of the business to R. Shaw, who will no doubt make a good successor. John Walls removed his family to his farm at Spring Lake, last Tuesday and T. A. Price expects to move this week to his farm near Pine Creek, in the northern part of the province. In losing Messrs Walls and Price, Clareholm loses two of its most successful business men, and we speak for the town when we say Clareholm wishes these men continued success in their new undertakings.

CANADIAN FRUIT TRADE

As showing to some extent how much a good fruit-growing means to Canada is as worth while noting the amount of trade formerly done by the countries at war.

At the Canadian Fruit Growers' Conference held at Grimsby last September, Mr. J. A. Rudolph, Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner, stated that he had taken a period of five years and that he had found the importation of apples from Germany to Britain carried each year from 5000 to 14000 bushel boxes, from Belgium from 100,000 to 600,000 boxes, from France from 50,000 to 575,000 boxes and from Portugal from 175,000 to 350,000 boxes. Of years the importations varied from 4,480 to 55,000 bushel boxes from Germany, 292,800 to 508,480 boxes from Belgium and from 122,440 to 500,180 boxes from Portugal. Large quantities were also imported from The Netherlands which may not be available. Mr. Rudolph prognosticated an increased demand for dried and evaporated fruit from Great Britain for use in the army. In 1913 Canada exported of this to United Kingdom 121,188 pounds, to Newfoundland 10,869 pounds and to Germany 247,862 pounds. Of course the trade with Germany will be cut off but the exportations should expand in other directions.

1915 Edition of Newspaper Directory Now Issued

It is now nearly a quarter of a century since Mr. A. McKinn, who established the first independent Advertising Agency in this country, recognized the popular necessities of publishing the first Directory of Canadian publicans. The nine successive editions of this valuable work provide the most complete and detailed record available of the growth of Canadian periodicals.

The 1915 Edition, which we have just received a copy, shows that the great war has not seriously affected the newspapers of Canada. While the birth-rate of new publications has fallen a check, and the death rate of the weak ones has perhaps increased a trifle, most of the leading papers, particularly dailies, show very healthy increases in circulation. Three metropolitan dailies have reached or passed the hundred thousand mark.

A census of the papers listed and described in the 1915 Directory shows nearly 100 Dailies, seven tri-weeklies, forty-five semi-weeklies, over 1000 weeklies, about forty bi-monthlies or semi-monthlies, 250 monthlies, three bi-monthlies and eighteen quarterlies, a total of over 1875 publications.

This means approximately one Daily to every 10,000 families, and one Weekly to every 1,500 families. From this one would infer that for a comparatively new country, Canada is well-served.

A. McKinn Limited report the usual keen demand for the Canadian Newspaper Directory, which sells at $2.00. Its rebounded, gold-stamped green cover has become a familiar sight on the desks of advertisers, publishers and business men everywhere who have interested in Canada.

THE HEARTENING DRUM.

Helped a Marshal of France to Save His Army.

A general must always preserve his dignity, but he should be prepared to do almost anything, even to taking a spade in the trenches, to keep his men in good heart in critical situations. Many such crises occurred during the terrible retreat of the French from Moscow in 1812, when what we should call blunders prevailed.

The cold found the French singularly unprepared for it. Their sufferings were aggravated by the fact that supplies were so scarce that they had to eat themselves on their way to Moscow, devastated the country through which they marched.

A drummer boy, Maurice by name, who was on this dreadful expedition, late in life left a simple memoir of his experiences. He relates that on one bitter day on the Wilna road the men were sinking on every side, and all seemed likely to perish, when Marshal Davoust, Prince of Eckmuhl, rode up and shouted to the colonel:

"Twelfth of the line! Where are your drummers?"

The colonel answered, "For 12 days now I have had no drummer left, but little Maurice here."

"My young friend," said the marshal to the boy, "go to the head of the line and beat the march."

Maurice went to the head of the line. He beat the march as hard as he could. The men's heartbeats seemed to be quickened by the roll of the drum. They marched on bravely. They held an important place in the line, and the marshal rode by the side of the little drummer.

For three-quarters of an hour Maurice beat the drum. Then the sounds began to fail. His face and ears were frozen. Tears ran down his cheeks and froze on his skin as they fell.

"Prices," said the boy, "I can't keep it up any longer. I am frozen. Better fall behind and die, like the other drummers. I'd rather go to sleep and die that way than suffer so cruelly."

Marshal Davoust said nothing, but got down from his horse, gave it to the orderly and took the drum from Maurice's hands. Davoust had worked his way up from a low grade into his early service had learned to drum.

He beat the drum well enough, at any rate, to inspire the men. Even little Maurice took time after wrapping his fingers in cloths, was able to take the drum again and resume the march, while the soldiers struggled on through the snow against the biting wind.

"The Knitting Women." The famous Miss Delaire, of the wine shop in St. Antoine, who killed the destroyer of so many of the knitters of France into her arms, patterns and her sister Vergennes, who worked on impossibly in silk, the knitters, are recalled to-day when Paris again knitters—their work is possible, than London. But now in every "loge de concierge," in every archway, and even in the few automobiles hurrying to the hospitals, the needles are busy with all kinds of will for "les petites piqueuses."

The colored work of the knitters in strange contrast to the sober natural shades in vogue for the British. Sunday is the great day for them, thousands of the poorer women can be seen approaching the shops of the Automobile Club in the Place de la Concorde, where "le petit poquet" with its pair of soles and a shawl and shawl is tenderly handed over for transport to the long line across France.

Oriental Jeweled Watch. Jeweled clocks are comparatively rare, but jeweled watches are somewhat common. The watch of diamond possesses a watch which is valued at over $1,000, a watch which is cut from a single topaz, the upper end of an emerald, which is valued around very thin serves for the glass. This watch, which was put together by a Swiss jeweler, shows the seconds, minutes, quarter hours, half hours, hours, days, weeks, months, seasons, years and leap years up to A. D. 1959.

Poison Ivy. Poison ivy contains prussic acid. This is found principally in the young leaves and buds; in older leaves there is very little of it. In three and a half ounces of young leaves there is about a quart of a grain of the acid. As with other plants in which prussic acid is found, the poisonous substance does not exist in its perfect form, but develops as soon as the leaves are bruised, a chemical action being set through the union of an enzyme with glucose.

A Common Fallacy. A couple of statistics from a rural district more in the strainers' gallery in the House of Commons tried to recognize their member on the floor.

"I must distinguish him from one after a hopeless visual observation."

"Of course not," was the honest reply. "He can't even distinguish himself."

"London Times."

Old Roman Furnaces. For the heating of their houses the Romans used a form of furnace known as the hypocaust, which was placed in a chamber beneath the floor and the heated air was made to circulate around the walls and under the floor by means of hollow tubes or a series of low flues, and was by way of pipes transported to other rooms.

Spots on the Ceiling. To remove the spots on a white-washed ceiling paint with a mixture of starch and water of the consistency of cream. Let the mixture dry on the ceiling then rub off with a soft dandelion cloth, laying a newspaper on the floor to protect the carpet from the white dust.

MODERN WARFARE.

Manning the Trenches and Listening the Enemy by Dusk Closes.

A column of infantry, marching four abreast—the regular marching formation—will pass a given point at the rate of 170 a minute. At that rate it will take a division, which consists of about 10,000 men, about an hour to pass a point.

A division, which is the largest body known in the organization of the modern army, will fully run two miles of trenches. The quietude distance in the manning of a trench is not to a man. There are three lines, however, needed to fully man such defenses—the firing line, which is down in the trench, a yard between each man; the support, which is back a short distance; and the reserve, which is behind the support. These three parts of the defense are of equal value.

In locating an enemy's position and other excellent indications. A low, thick cloud indicates infantry, a high and thin cloud indicates cavalry, while a broken cloud indicates artillery or wagon trains. An experienced scout can closely estimate the character and strength of an enemy solely by the dust cloud.

An aeroplane to be perfectly safe must keep at an elevation of at least 4,000 feet above the ground.

Although the telephone and telegraph have become generally used in battle for purposes of communication, the distances under half a mile the old fashioned courier and horse are still extensively used. These have been found a swifter and surer means of communication for short distances than either telephone or telegraph.—Washington Star.

ORIGIN OF STARS. It may be that the Nebular Hypothesis is All Wrong.

The nebular hypothesis is that the stars were formed by the cooling and cohering of the gaseous nebulae. These "fluffy balls of luminous gas," which are visible to the naked eye in the Milky way, are supposed to be star stuff. Many of these clouds have in their centers tiny spots of incandescent matter, the supposed beginnings of new stars and suns.

In 1910 astronomers at Lick observatory discovered that the older a star the more it twinkles, and the brighter it is. This is the opposite of what the nebular hypothesis would lead us to expect. Then the question arose, Can nebulae be stars in formation when their speed is even greater than that of the older stars?

The astronomers began to doubt the old theory. Some years of hard work at Mount Hamilton and at the University observatory in Chile were required. Now the velocities of forty nebulae are accurately known. The incredible speeds of these clouds have been determined. They are older, not younger, than the stars. It is possible that they are disintegrating stars and not stars in the making at all.

The director of the Lick observatory says: "The effect upon our ideas of the connection existing between planetary nebulae and the stars is revolutionary. Apparently the stars have been evolved from planetary nebulae."

"What, then, are the nebulae if they are not star stuff? That is what the astronomers at Lick have set themselves to determine."—Exchange.

Unique Engineering Feat. When railroad builders began the discovery of gold a unique engineering feat was performed. At a point forty miles out of Skagway the survey had been made for the road along the shore of a lake, but it was found to be so irregular and broken by so many coves that the plan was abandoned of getting a better line by lowering the lake level.

This was done by cutting an artificial channel, through which the water of the lake drained off. But presently the new channel, having been cut through a sandy hill, gave way, and the escaping lake water wore an enormous canyon through the country and reduced the lake level again over seventy feet. A thin, level road was secured over what was formerly the bed of the lake.—Argument.

When Knights Were Bold. When knights were old it became essential that they should bear some sign by which their followers could distinguish them in battle, and this was the function of their armor. The knights who omitted to wear their own arms ran considerable risk, and it is related that at the battle of Tewkesbury the last of the De Clares owed the death to his omission to wear his heraldic device. He was slain unrecognized, whereas had he been known he would have been paid prisoner for the ransom of his life.

An Extreme Case. "They tell me your daughter is very musical," said the visitor.

"Yes," replied Mrs. Westfall. "The fact is she is so very musical that we cannot induce her to practice either her singing or her piano lessons, the amateur quality of the work grates so on her sensitive nerves."—Judge.

Causes For Apprehension. "I object to that man on the jury," said the lawyer for the defense.

"On what grounds?" asked the court.

"I was instrumental in getting him married."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Self Evident. "A man has invented a trousers pocket which a wife can't discover."

"He wasn't a married man."—Baltimore American.

Too much rest simply means rust—St. Walter Scott.
